Dear Daniel & Anthony,

I am writing to say I was sorry to hear about Nick's departure. He had become quite a friend & we talked a certain amount about computer matters. It sounded as though things weren't great in hospital & I hope the end was peaceful.

Nick has the honour of probably starting the UK's oldest school website which is rather a paradox given that West Run closed down nearly 30 years ago. Without Nick I strongly doubt there would be any OWS society for which I am also very grateful.

It is interesting to go through the OWS Website & it captures an interesting commentary of British independent education in the 20th century. I only recently discovered that Lionel Hackett is a distant cousin of mine.

I will try & make May 28th & I hope everything goes smoothly.

Yours ever

Andrew Parker Jervis
